DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-8 are presented for examination.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claims 1-3 and 5-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C 102(e) as being unpatentable over Meadway et al, U.S Patent No. 6,675,205 ['Meadway'].

4. As to claim 1, Meadway discloses a method of enabling multiple end-users to receive content information, the method comprising:

supplying the content information to a hub [abstract and column 1 <lines 46-52>]; and using a peer-to-peer network of respective devices residing at respective ones of the end-users and connected to the hub for distributed storage of the content information on the network under control of the hub [column 1 <line 66> to column 2 <line 17>].

5. As to claim 2, Meadway discloses the method of claim 1, comprising remotely controlling a specific one of the devices for supplying the stored content information to at least one of the devices [column 1 <lines 46-52>].

6. As to claim 3, Meadway discloses the method of claim 1, comprising a service for supplying an electronic content guide representing the content information available on the network [column 16 <lines 33-40> where: the home page is equivalent in functionality to an electronic content guide].

7. As to claim 5, Meadway discloses the method of claim 1, comprising controlling the devices [column 1 <lines 46-52> where: the peer systems are equivalent to the devices].

8. As to claim 6, Meadway discloses the method of claim 1, comprising providing a UI to the end-users for selecting from the content information [column 16 <lines 33-40>].

9. As to claim 7, Meadway discloses a device for use in a method of enabling multiple end-users to receive content information, wherein:

the method comprises:

supplying the content information to a hub [abstract and column 1 <lines 46-52>]; and

using a peer-to-peer network of devices residing at respective ones of the end-users and connected to the hub for distributed storage of the content information on the network under control of the hub [column 1 <line 66> to column 2 <line 17>]; and the device comprises:

storage for storing at least part of the content information [column 17 <lines 21-23> where: the remote location (including the agent located at the remote location) are equivalent to the claimed device]; and a controller for providing, to a party different from any from the end-users, remote control of the device for supplying stored content information to the network [column 1 <lines 46-52> where: the agent is equivalent to a controller, the different party is the service or central site].

10. As to claim 8, Meadway discloses a consumer electronics device comprising a storage for storing content information from a network and for supplying the content information to the network, and comprising a control module for remote control of the storing and supplying [column 2 <lines 9-12 and 38-44> and column 17 <lines 21-23>].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2154

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

11. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C 103(a) as being unpatentable over Meadway, in view of Iwata, U.S Patent No. 6,385,201.

12. Meadway does disclose the use of multiple peer networks [column 1 <lines 13-14>] but does not specifically disclose the method using a plurality of hubs, each respective one thereof connected to a respective one of a number of peer-to-peer networks.

13. Iwata teaches a method using a plurality of hubs, each respective one thereof connected to a respective one of a number of peer-to-peer networks [Figure 13 and column 1 <line 64> to column 2 <line 13> where: the peer group leader node is equivalent to a hub]. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have implemented Iwata's system of peer groups into Meadway's peer-to-peer file sharing system to more accurately synchronize parameters and information between Meadway's multiple peer networks as well as establish more efficient routing methods between peer networks [column 2 <lines 41-52>].

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Art Unit: 2154

The following art is cited to further show the state of the art in regards to peer networks and file distribution:
